

STILL

© Kurt Hentschlager 2002

Series of Lambda photo prints
on aluminum, 2002

courtesy Lia Rumma Gallery, Milano
www.galleriarumma.it

Size 125 x 270 cm / 49 x 106 inches

STILL is a reflection on wave patterns and frequency spectrums, but in the widest sense, meant more as a visual metaphor than literally.

The work examines the correlation between light intensity, color space and dynamics, as with extreme contrast shifts perceived in flickering light. Starting as a single frame, devoid of movement or action, the concept of each composition emerges from processing an image rather than building it. A series of discrete, redundant, layering steps results in a “loading” of each picture, giving it vibrancy and potential while otherwise remaining perfectly still.